

UdN International Summer School

2010...#2

INTERCULTURAL LIVING | ECONOMIES OF CHANGE

The second International Summer School hosted by the Neighbourhood University (UdN) will explore innovative models for design process, urban development and community engagement. 25 young architects, urban planners, landscape architects and urban designers will live and work on the UdN site for two weeks, exploring issues of intercultural living and economies of change within the context of urban development.

In the urban neighbourhood of Wilhelmsburg in Hamburg, Germany, the UdN is a laboratory, a construction site, a stage, an interactive learning space and a common space. The UdN is a multiple, polyvalent learning device, and will become both site and object for the Summer School.

The Summer School students will set off into the neighbourhood, working with the local community to investigate economies of change and the production of space and knowledge within the context of urban development and intercultural living. This process of engagement with urban reality will extend the field of urban studies and will be significant to the outcome of the two weeks.

The UdN Summer School is an international and interdisciplinary project presented by the Urban Design and Community Planning Departments at HafenCity University (HCU) Hamburg. The Neighbourhood University (UdN) is a research and education initiative created by the HCU in cooperation with the International Building Exhibition (IBA) Hamburg and the Kamnagel Culture Factory.

The UdN invites you to extend traditional boundaries of planning and design and explore intercultural living and economies of change at the International Summer School in August 2010.

- When? 16.-28. August 2010
- Where? Hamburg-Wilhelmsburg
- What? UdN International Summer School: Intensive residential workshop, 3|5 ECTS
- Who? M.A. or M.Sc. students in the fields of planning, architecture, arts & humanities
- Costs? 190,- EUR (expenses include accommodation, meals & teaching materials)
60,- EUR HCU Students

FOR APPLICATION PLEASE CHECK:

<http://udn.hcu-hamburg.de/summerschool2010.html> OR EMAIL renee.tribble@hcu-hamburg.de

Further Information

HCU | HafenCity Universität
Prof. Michael Koch, Prof. Bernd Kniess, Prof. Christopher Dell

Dipl.-Ing. Renée Tribble
Averhoffstraße 38
22085 Hamburg
+49 40 42827-4358
renee.tribble@hcu-hamburg.de www.hcu-hamburg.de

HOW WILL WE LIVE AND WORK TOGETHER IN FUTURE CITIES?
HOW TO PRODUCE URBAN SPACE?
WHAT ARE THE POSSIBILITIES OF ECONOMIES AND WAYS OF EXCHANGE?